

A Hand-drawn Display Font for Creating the Most Diabolical Horror Titles

This loose and inky brush font takes its inspiration from the classic Giallo film posters of the 1960s to 1980s – a cult cinematic subgenre beloved for its stylish visuals, haunting soundtracks and exploitation led marketing.

It's a devilishly drawn design that aims to capture the feeling of vintage horror, preserving analogue details of old print while remaining versatile enough to work across a variety of digital designs.

The Cinema Macabre font family boasts six fonts, each containing a unique set of uppercase and lowercase characters, as well as numerals, punctuation and language support. Add to this a host of custom ligatures, underlines and graphic elements and you have an essential toolbox for creating truly hand-made looking title designs.
